

John Xerri de Caro

Graduated as a physiotherapist in 1998, and works with the Department of Health; and a part-time lecturer at the University of Malta. Currently pursuing a research degree leading to a Doctorate in Professional Studies (Health and Social Care) at the Sheffield Hallam University, UK.

In 2003, obtained a M.Sc. in Sports Injuries and Therapy from the Manchester Metropolitan University, having studied at the Alsager campus; presenting a Master thesis entitled 'The use of mobilisations with movement in the treatment of shoulder pain in overhead throwing athletes'.

Since March 2007 has been the President of the Malta Association of Physiotherapists, a post that has taken far more out of him than imagined.

Previously also very active on the MAP, representing Malta in Yokohama as voting delegate for our inception into the World Confederation for Physiotherapy.

Recently nominated on the EU-Working Group of the European Region – WCPT for the term 2008-2010.

Projects for the future: Professional Development, International Policies and EU Directive Implementation, Legislative Frameworks, Research and Research Governance, ICF, Vision Task Force, Physiotherapy Promotion